Definition

Authorized Signer (required role) may authorize account change of address instructions, instructions to open and close accounts, and add or delete signers on the business account.

Beneficial Owner is an individual who directly or indirectly owns 25% or more of the equity interests of the legal entity and a single individual with significant responsibility to control, manage, or direct the legal entity (e.g., CEO, CFO, COO, general partner, etc.).

Legal Entity includes a corporation, limited liability company or other entity that is created by the filing of a public document with a Secretary of State or similar office, a general partnership, and any similar entity formed under the laws of a foreign jurisdiction.

Signer on Business (optional role) may not authorize account change of address instructions, instructions to open and close accounts, and add or delete signers on the business account.

Trade name is a name under which a person transacts business, other than one’s legal name (personal name) or a registered corporate name, general or limited partnership name, limited liability company name or limited liability partnership name. A trade name is also known as a fictitious name or a DBA (doing business as). A registered business entity can file for Registration of Trade Name (DCCA T-1 form) if the name is different from its registered name.

Registering Your Business in Hawaii

In Hawaii, corporations, partnerships, limited liability companies, and limited liability partnerships are registered with the Department of Commerce and Consumer Affairs, Business Registration Division (BREG). Registering a business with the BREG is relatively simple. BREG’s business registration, amendment, correction, and reservation forms are available for download.

To register a business using a paper form, select a business entity type, then click the desired form to view, fill and print. These forms can be filled out on a computer and are for downloading and printing for filing by mail, fax or over the counter. They can also be filed online, which is a paperless, hassle-free option with instant submittals and receipts.
